Dr. Melissa McCarthy, Associate Professor of Health Policy at George Washington University in Washington, DC is looking to hire a recent MS graduate in biostatistics. Her current research is on the health services used by Medicaid recipients and the role of their social and financial challenges such as homelessness, drug addiction, and others on their health and health care. The goal is to learn how Medicaid can better serve this population in need.

If you are interested, contact Melissa at melmccar@gwu.edu directly.