

Mentoring Students of Color: Build Relationships That Foster Cross-Cultural Understanding, Trust and Accountability to Ensure Their Success

Tuesday, October 30 • 2-3:30 pm (ET)

Traversing predominately white academic environments can be daunting and difficult for students of color. They need mentors who are culturally aware. Mentoring relationships built upon cross-cultural understanding, trust and accountability can impact the sense of belonging and success of students of color — and help to deconstruct the historical and contemporary racism students of color sometimes experience on college campuses.

Does your institution provide strategies and programs that make students of color feel valued, safe, supported and a sense of belonging throughout their educational experience?

Gather your colleagues from across campus and engage in valuable discussion about how you can better support and serve your students of color. Join us on Tuesday, October 30, 2018 and our expert presenters will build your capacity to better mentor across racial and ethnic lines. Inform your practice so you can improve your mentor-mentee relationships and finesse your skills so you can be more cross-culturally aware when formally and informally mentoring students of color.

Mentoring students of color means engaging the racial, ethnic and cultural differences between a mentor and mentee. Become an essential resource to students of color who seek a relationship that helps them navigate institutional barriers. Join our expert presenters as they discuss these challenges and others relating to working with students of color, best practices and their personal experiences.

Participation Outcomes

As a result of this webinar, you will be able to:

What You Get When You Attend a PaperClip Webinar:

- Great Value: Invite your entire staff for one low price! (one location)
- Certificate of Completion: A certificate for each participant is available after the live event.
- Multimedia Discs: Add the event recording and materials to your professional library to use over and over again. Digital Links Available Upon Request.
- Convenient Access: Log in online to stream the 90-minute live event.
- Specific Feedback: Ask your questions

- Create a culturally competent and responsive campus community for all your students of color — ensure they feel valued, safe, supported and a sense of belonging.
- Explore the various ways formal and informal mentorship supports students of color — review theories and trends of today that will serve as a framework for your mentor-mentee relationships so you can better guide your students toward engagement, success and graduation.
- Increase your self-awareness by exploring your social identities and your socialization — articulate your identities and the ways in which they inform your ideas of success and mentorship so that you can better support and serve your students of color.
- Develop essential skills necessary to engage in cross racial-ethnic mentorship — participate in dialogical practice around accountability and trust-building to foster a sense of belonging and success for students of color.
- Foster an inclusive campus and decrease marginalization of students of color — support the structure necessary for them to be successful, to be satisfied and to persist on your campus.

during the Q&A session.