Department of Mental Health Centennial Essay Contest
Call for Submissions

The essay should examine how understanding mental health can improve our understanding of a public health problem, or our ability to address a public health problem. A winning essay will demonstrate an outstanding grasp of the importance of mental health toward understanding and/or addressing a specific public health problem.

Entries must be received by 5pm EST on Tuesday, October 13th, 2015.

Two winners, one at the doctoral level and one at the master’s level, will receive a $250 cash prize, be acknowledged in an awards ceremony on October 27th, and featured on our Department’s Web site.

For more contest guidelines and details, visit the Department of Mental Health website.
